Correction: Parking Lot, 300 Block of South Main

Salisbury_North Carolina_January 28 - The Salisbury Post inaccurately reported in today's newspaper, Tuesday, January 28, about a future parking deck on the 300 Block of South Main Street.

The City of Salisbury is not building a parking deck on South Main Street. The current proposal is for a shared surface parking lot. The draft site plan for the parking on this lot is attached. There are no proposals for a future parking deck on this block. All proposals must go through the City's Historic Preservation Commission (HPC).

The City of Salisbury has asked the newspaper for a correction. We do not wish the public or media to think we will be building a parking deck when we are not.

Please see the attached site plan for the current parking proposal and the below background for more information:

The 300 South Main parking lot will replace a former publicly owned lot that was on the site prior to the construction of Integro Technologies. The former lot housed the City's farmer's market and provided overflow parking for downtown events.

The new parking lot will be shared. Integro Technologies will use the spaces during the day and the spaces will be available for public use on nights and weekends. The City has a similar shared parking lot at the downtown Gateway Building, which has worked successfully for many years.
